PREFACE

The genealogical information contained in the following pages is based upon a previous thorough work on this subject by John Horatio Nelson (1866 - 1931). The date of record of his compilation is January 30, 1908. Therefore, the information listed herein spans the 52 years since the completion of his work, and to some degree adds to , and corrects his findings.

Only with the generous cooperation of many people has it been possible to complete the present work. A concerted effort has been made to trace down all lines of descent, and to verify all data. Any omissions, or errors are regretted. It is fondly hoped, however, that any readers of these pages who may note corrections or additions that should be made will be kind enough to forward them to the present compiler, so that the corrected data may be included, and thus preserved for all, in periodic supplements to this work on file at the Library of Congress.

FOOTNOTES

1/ See copy of Augustine Weedon's will on page 68.

2/ The spelling of all names in this study is consistent with the spelling of names in John Horatio Nelson's work. While variants exist from one record to another in the spelling of certain names, close investigation has been made of these variances, and the one considered most historically correct has been used.

3/ See references on pages 66 and 67, concerning George Weedon.

4/ Because of marriage between cousins, and second marriages in some instances, to preserve continuity and format, it has been necessary to list some persons twice, to account for them properly under each heading.

5/ Branch of military service not determined.

6/ " Cole Hill" was one an estate with family cenetery. The estate house has long since been razed, but the cenetery presumably remains. There is recent information to the effect that it is preserved, but lies wholly within a military reservation adjacent to "Quantico", the Marine Training Headquarters at Triangle, Va. The cemetery is on the right hand side of the road from Washington to Richmond, off of County Road 625, in what was formerly a part of the Chopawamsic Recreational Area. The Honorable Claude Swanson, when Secretary of the Navy, wrote a letter to the family guaranteeing permanent care of, and access to the cemetery, as long as it remained within a military reservation. This letter was written to Edwin Chancellor Payne.

7/ No explanation of the geographic location or description of "Grove's Place" is currently available. It is presumed to be in Prince William County, Virginia, but probably with the passage of time has lost its identity.

8/ Both "Smithfield" and "Springfield" are in usage, referring to the family home of Peter Trone, and later John Catesby Weedon. A family cemetery, in good repair, and currently maintained by the family of Virginia Speiden Carper and Eleanor Steltz Kebler lies near the former home site, the foundation of which still remains. A former school, by the same name, was nearby and was attended through the past generation. "Smithfield" is the proper, preferred name for the above named sites in this area...which is near Minnieville, Va. Victor L. Kebler is consulting with the Department of the Interior and the U.S. Air Force, to have the cemetery included as a part of the permanent maps of the area.

9/ Dates marked with an asterisk were copied from the tombstones of the individuals names, in St. Marks Church Cemetery, Petersville, Md.

10/ Dates listed in parentheses, and noted by double asterisks were obtained from authoritative, but conflicting sources. Concerning notes 9/ and 10/, historical precedent determines that dates listed on tombstones are presumed to be the correct ones, unless other authority for dates is considerably stronger. In these cases, the tombstone dates should be accepted as correct.

11/ See Brigadier General Deas letter on page 69 concerning John Weedon's death.

2/ "Poplar Grove" was the former home of the "French" family located in Prince William County, Va. "Lyndon" is the name of the former home estate of Peter Trone Weedon. "Lyndon" is on "Kettle Run" near Bristow, Prince William County, Va.

13/ "Tranquillity" was a family estate, with family cemetery in Prince William County, Va. No other information is currently available concerning this site.

Ralph De Weedon, England, is claimed by some as founder of the English Weedon Family.

William Weedon of Weedon, England, was there in 1066 when William the Conqueror overthrew King Harold.

Mottoes: "Credo", I believe
"Spes Mea Christus", My hope is in Jesus Christ.

James and William Weedon came from Buckingham County, England. Another William Weedon came from Hertfordshire, England. A George Weedon came over to this country with Sir Thomas Lunsford in 1650 and settled in Virginia.

Augustine enlisted in Rev. War in March 1777 - served 3 years. Had rank of 1st Sergeant. Applied for pension Aug. 6, 1832 which was allowed.

George Weedon, Va. Lieutenant Colonel 3rd Va. - Feb. 13, 1776 - Colonel Aug. 13, 1776 acting adjutant Gen. to Gen. Washington Feb. 20, 1777- Brig. Gen. Continental Army Feb. 27, 1777. Resigned June 11, 1783. Died Nov. 1793.

At St. Martins, England in the church yard, a John Weedon is buried. Just outside of Providence, Rhode Island, Mrs. Mary Weedon is living on the original tract of land granted by the King of England.

General George Weedon was on Gen. George Washington's staff and his picture is at Mount Vernon and Valley Forge. He was with Gen. George Washington at Valley Forge, and there is a Weedon Avenue laid out in the grounds.

George Weedon, soldier was born in Fredericksburg, Va. about 1730. He was an innkeeper, and ardent patroit, and during the revolutionary war became the Lieut.-Colonel of the 3rd Va. regiment, being transferred to the 1st Va. regiment in Aug. 1776. He was commissioned brigadier general in 1776, and fought in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown. He was acting adjutant general of the United States Army from Feb. 20, 1777-to April 17, 1777. When Col. Morgan Connor was appointed to the position. He resigned shortly afterwards but resumed the command of a brigade in 1780 and during the siege of Yorktown was in charge of the Va. Militia. He died in Fredericksburg, Nov. 1793.

Weedon Extracts

George Weedon was grantor and grantee in conveyances of land in Westmoreland County, Va., in the years 1657, 1658, 1666, and again in 1697, 1698, and 1701. His wife was Susannah Weedon, and they had two children:

(a) Jordan, who made a will and left property to his wife and son, but fails to mention the name of either.

(b) Mary, (no further information)

George Weedon's will is dated 1703, and by it he devises certain property to George Weedon, son of Benjamin Weedon, and also to George Weedon, son of Thomas Weedon. Another George Weedon, probably the son of Benjamin or Thomas Weedon, left a will dated 1734, and devised all his property to his wife and possible posthumous son, but fails to mention the name of his wife.

In 1763, 1767, and 1773, there were conveyances of land to George Weedon, who was probably the son of Benjamin or Thomas, but not the one making the will in 1734. Thomas Weedon, was receiving conveyances of land in 1704, and had a son George. Benjamin Weedon had a son George above mentioned. Susannah Weedon, widow of George Weedon, deed (sic) to George Beard in 1706. It seems from these records that George Weedon, Benjamin Weedon, Thomas Weedon, and John Weedon, Sr., were contemporaries, and they may have been brothers of the first emigrants.

George Weedon, son of Augustine and Rebekah Baker Weedon, and brother of Augustine who served in the Revolutionary War, is mentioned in the family Bible as having "married a widow Beard," and no further reference is made to him. Family tradition, however, contemporaneous public records, and other facts have led to the conclusion, that he is the General George Weedon of Revolutionary fame. He lived in Fredericksburg, Va., and died wealthy, but the exact date of his death, where he died, and where buried could not be ascertained from any records or tombstones, of the citizens of said city. His will is filed among the archives there, and bears the date Nov. 25, 1793. This will was probated Jan. 24, 1794, which is conclusive evidence that he died between these last two dates. His property was devised and bequeathed mainly to his wife and his two nephews, John and Hugh Mercer.

He was brother-in-law to General Hugh Mercer who married Isabell Gordon-Weedon having married Catherine, sister of Isabell, who were daughters of John and Margaret Gordon. To reconcile this fact, which is of record and undoubted, with entries in the family Bible, Catherine must have been the "widow Beard" when she married General Weedon.

For a fuller account of the life and times of General George Weedon, reference is made to Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography: Heitman's Historical Register of the Continental Army, page 426: Washington and his Generals, page 286: Life of Hugh Mercer, and other historical works concerning the Revolutionary period.

Brigadier General Deas' Letter

Tyners Station Sept. 27th

My Dear Col.

I received your dispatch of 25th inst last night and have had no opportunity of sending a reply by telegraph before the present and now avail myself of the opportunity by Dr. Baldwin who is here on a visit to his son and goes off on the first train.

Weedon fell about fifteen minutes after we got into the fight on Sunday morning. He was struck by a ball just above the eye which passed out at the back of his head. He lingered a short time, but was never conscious after he was struck. At the time he was shot, he was in front of his regiment and had just taken the colors from Lieut. Renfro, who had been shot dead with them in his hands. At this moment, he was in twenty steps of the federal line when a color sergeant of theirs stepped out and planted his colors in the ground, and Weedon with his colors in left and his pistol in his right hand commenced firing. But the fatal bullet was already on its way and he fell, his head touching Renfro's and the colors laid across the boddies (sic) of the gallant heroes. Thus died one of the bravest and best officers I have ever known. A great loss to his family and his country.

Col. Weedon's effects are all in the hands of Whitney who doubtless has written to you. As to sending his body to Mobile, it was impossible to do so at the time. I never got back as far as the hospital, but understood it was difficult to get even a decent box to put the boddies (sic) in. His and Capt. Nott's are burried (sic) near where the hospital was, and on the banks of the Chickamauga at (L?)unts ford. Dr. Little was in charge of the hospital at the time; when he returns will have the place more minutely described. Capt. Nott fell about ten minutes before Weedon, shot through both hips and the lower intestines, he lived about two hours and was conscious until about fifteen minutes before he died.

Captain,

I am directed by Gen. Fitz Lee to say that you will proceed with your Company to Prince William Co., Va., for the purpose of scouting and arresting deserters. You will report to your Regiment at the expiration of thirty (30) days unless you receive other instructions.

General Lee wished you to take general supervision of the county - arrest all suspicious characters. It would be well to send some good men on ahead of the company to arrest the most notorious ones, for they will leave as soon as they ascertain your presence. The names of the Weedons are suggested for this purpose, with others you may see fit to send. Be particular to arrest all of the men formerly belonging to Kincheloe's Company who have no business there. That Co. has been broken up. Let no citizens go outside the lines, nor permit any to come in. Send all persons you may arrest to Gen. Fitz Lee's Hd. Qr.

You may use your own discretion in regard to allowing citizens to pass the lines, whose loyalty is beyond question.

Very Respy

Capt. Davis Co. A 4th Va. Cav.

One of the principle reasons for sending you to Pr. Wm. is to arrest men who have no business there - Especially Kincheloe's men.

Dear Sir:

Your esteemed favor of the 12th is received, and I hasten to reply.

I enclose a very crude sketch of the Battlefield of Chickamauga. I am ıtirely out of good ones.

According to the records your uncle, Col. Weedon, was not killed on the part of the field shown in the sketch to which you allude.

I have been over the ground with Col. McSpadden who commanded the Brigade on Sunday the 20th. The brigade bivouacked on the night of the 19th at No. 1 on the enclosed sketch, south-east of the Brotherton house.

The records are wrong as to the hour of movements. Col. McSpadden said that he knew his report was erroneous when he got on the field with me, as he remembered distinctly that they moved out quite early in the morning.

They first met the Federals in the Brotherton field on the west side of the Lafayette Road, where I have made the first red cross dots in the line of march. They drove them from there in a very few minutes, passed through the next stand at a ridge at No. 2, according to the records that must have been where the Federal General Lytte, was killed. From there the Brigade moved westward cross the Crawfish Springs Road and halted on top of a hill to the west of that road, the Federals having disappeared in the woods to the west. Gen. Hindman rode up at that time, and Col. McSpadden suggested to him that they were too far in advance, that it would be better for them to move to the north and join with the Confederates in that direction, in which opinion Gen Hindman concurred and they moved from there to figure 3, which corresponds with Fig. 12 on the sketch to which you allude. According to the Confederate reports the 22nd. Ala. made its first charge at Fig. 3, after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but Col. McSpadden ays that it was impossible for them to have put in so much time from when they at Fig. 1, until they reached there, and he and Judge Toulmin, who commanded the 22nd. Ala. after your Uncle fell, and many others belonging to the Brigade, say that when they made the charge at Fig. 3, they were evidently the first Confederates on that part of the field: that there were no signs of any previous battle there. The first charge on the Federal lines at that point could not have been later that 12:30 p.m. and if Deas' Brigade, (in which was the 22nd Ala.) was in that first charge, your uncle must have fallen at about 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

I have a great deal of correspondence on the subject with various ones, quite lengthy account of the loss of the flag, sent me by Judge Toulmin. The flag at last accounts was in the possession of the 121st Ohio that picked it up after the 22nd had fallen back.

Gen. Deas, in his official report uses this language, "Among the killed I much regret to record the name of Lt. Col. Weedon, commanding the 22nd Ala. Regiment who fell early on Sunday morning, while most gallantly leading and cheering on his brave regiment." Judge Toulmin, in his report says that the regiment advanced about 330 yards from its night bivouac, when it came in contact with the enemy's skirmish line, (that is in the Brotherton field,) and there was where Capt. Nott of the Regiment fell. Also the color sergeant fell there. The colors were then taken by Lieut. Leonard of Co. K. and borne by him until he was wounded. They then fell into the hands of Lieut. Renfro of Co. K. After this, the regiment moved forward some 200 yards across the open field. The regiment became engaged with the second line of battle, which obstinately contested every foot of ground over which it passed. There took place a terrible conflict which lasted 20 minutes, and in which we lost many brave spirits, none of whom deserves more honorable mention than Lieut. A. D. Renfro who fell, pierced through the head, colors in hand. Here, too fell our brave, our true, our esteemed commander, Lieut. Col. John Weedon, having led with distinguished coolness and bravery, his command to within 20 paces of the enemy's line, he fell to rise no more. He fell beneath the honored folds of that cherished flag, under which he had so gallantly led his brave men. From that position it moved on as before described to you.

Judge Toulmin further says, regarding the charge at Fig. 12 to which you refer - "Here I regret to state that we lost our colors. Private Braswell of Company A, who was then bearing them, fearlessly rushed to the front in advance of the line and was there literally riddled with balls, as was subsequently shown by the recovery of his body." He says "the regiment rallied twice in the attempt to recover the ground and lost colors, but the storm of grape and canister was so terrible and destructive that every effort proved unavailing."

Should you desire further information, please let me know and I will be happy to look over my records and correspondence and furnish you such as I have.

Very Resp'y,

G. E. Dolton

COPIED FROM THE WASHINGTON GLOBE, JANUARY 19, 1837.

The body of William Wroe Payne, Esq., a clerk of the auditor of the General Post Office Department, was found in the canal, near the 14th street bridge, yesterday morning.

An inquest was held over the remains of the unfortunate gentleman, by Clement C. Coote, Esq., who returned a verdict of accidental death by drowning.

There were few more efficient clerks, in the employment of the government, than Colonel Payne. Industrious, patient, and arduous in the discharge of the duties of his desk, in addition to his extraordinary talents as a clerk, he was deservedly a favorite with the heads of the department, and the gentlemen of the bureau to which he was attached.

His melancholy fate has made orphans of a numerous family of helpless children, for whose protection and aid of a bountiful Providence is invoked.

BIRTHDAY RECALLS VIRGINIA'S PROGRESS

Mrs. Chapman, Who Celebrated Ninetieth Anniversary Here Yesterday, Has Witnessed Marvelous Changes in Her Native State.

12/16/1917

A birthday reception was given yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Martha Chapman, Roanoke's oldest citizen, at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. C. H. Kindervater, at 174 11th avenue. Quite a number of intimate friends "dropped in" to informally, but most heartily, celebrate the birthday of Roanoke's oldest known citizen.

Mrs. Martha Chapman was born in Prince William county, February 8th, 1827, thus making her ninety years of age yesterday.

Apart from almost total blindness with which she has been afflicted for years, and deafness, which has gradually encroached upon her, this grand, great grandmother has her faculties keen, and is as much alive to every problem of today as people whose years are around the meridian of life.

After living in Prince William county until she was sixty-three, Mrs. Chapman, at her husband's death, came to live with her daughter, Mrs. Nannie [illegible] thus having lived here twenty-seven years. She has seen Roanoke grow from a village to a city of no mean size and position.

In Mrs. Chapman's lifetime many and startling changes have taken place.

When as a bride she was married at Dumfries, there were no luxuries known like those which the ordinary citizen enjoys today.

Though married to one who was well to do, indeed, was counted rich in those days, the young bride went to housekeeping in a log cabin, with the separate kitchen built to the front of the cabin.

For household equipment and among her wedding presents were a sixty-pound "feather" bed (much prized), a folding hair mattress with brilliant cords to tie around the four-poster bed, a set of silver spoons made from melted coins, two beds, a large and splendidly carved table, a small table and a few chairs and utensils.

The much-prized wedding gown was bought at Alexandria with money that was more valuable than the gold with which it was made, for "bartering" and not money was the medium of exchange.

When Mrs. Chapman was a girl, there were few steam boats. Trains had not been heard of in Virginia. All express packages were carried on horseback and overland travel was by slow stage, with "relays" of horses at different "inns" on the routes. Postage stamps had not been engraved and printed for use to secure a letter you paid ten, fifteen or twenty-five cents, according to distance. Mails came once a week, and it was a great event when they came as often as twice a week.

There was no such luxury as a cooking stove; cooking was done at an open fire-place. There was no thought of electric lights; gas was, perhaps, dreamed of, but the pine knot and tallow-dip were the principal means of lighting the home.

The luxury of a porcelain bath and toilet accessories to the bath room was only possible to those who had vivid imaginations, but not to become a fact for many years.

There were no telephones, no telegraph instruments, no long-distance equipment. A Marconi had not been born, and to have mentioned such a possibility would have sent one to the asylum—if there was one.

The old-time "mule car" was remote as a future possibility, and one had to rub an Aladdin's lamp to get a glimpse of the future electric car, which "freed the mule."

Steamships had never braved the ocean, and to have hinted at "steel hulls" floating on water would have had you incarcerated in the nearest gaol.

Men were stronger in those days, because better fed. Cattle could [illegible] get more information from Kate Hovison. a niece of Hattie Love, but I cannot give you her address. she lives in Wash. D.C. Fannie Reedon could tell you where, no doubt. Effie Speiden and Mary Payne correspond with her, she is a fine looking and splendid woman. My dear Nephew:— 2/4

Your very unexpected tho' welcome letter of 26 inst. just rec'd. Am always glad to see or hear from you. Will proceed to give you all the information I can command. My memory is poor and I have forgotten many things which might have been of interest or benefit to many persons, but when one lives to be almost 79 they cannot remember as they once did. The Howisons were of Scotch descent, I cannot now tell you how my great grandfather Stephen Howison came to be raised in Md, but he was married to Miss Mallie Brooks, his family moved to Prince Wm Co. Va when my grandmother was quite small. He was a man of sterling integrity and officiated at funerals using the Episcopal service for the dead. You remember old Miss Nancy Steele I know, she said he was the best man she ever knew and always reminded her of the old Patriarchs Abraham, Isaac & Jacob. One of cousin Allen Howisons daughters had a lengthy account of the Howisons from the time our ancestor flailed the gypsies from the King who was travelling incog. through the country, he was made wealthy and knighted for his timely intervention, his son (perhaps) married in the titled Crawford family, they united their coats of arms, the upright heart, and basin of corn, I unfortunately forgot
